UNEMPLOYMENT

- The unemployment rate in Arizona was 6.9 percent in April 2014, down 0.4 percentage point from March. The rate is down 1.1 percentage points from one year earlier and is below its recent peak of 10.8 percent in January 2010.
- 209,800 Arizona residents were unemployed during April 2014, down from a recent high of 336,200 in January 2010. There are still 86,500 more people unemployed in Arizona than when the recession began.
- In Arizona, initial claims for unemployment insurance benefits totaled 22,735 during March, up 5.5 percent from the previous month. Total initial claims over the past 12 months are down 3.5 percent from their level over the 12 months before that.

EXPORTS

- In Arizona, exports totaled $1.7 billion in March and $20.0 billion over the past year, up 6.7 percent from the 12 months ending in March 2013 (inflation-adjusted dollars).
- Arizona exports over the past 12 months are up 22.2 percent from their level in the same 12-month period four years earlier (inflation-adjusted dollars).

HOUSING

- Home prices in Arizona increased by 13.8 percent from the fourth quarter of 2012 to the fourth quarter of 2013 (the most recent quarter for which data are available). They are up 27.1 percent since their recent low in the second quarter of 2011 but remain 31.1 percent below their pre-housing-crash peak.
- Housing starts in Arizona totaled 31,280 units (seasonally adjusted annual rate) in March 2014, a decrease of 1.0 percent from February.
- Within the West census region, which includes Arizona, sales of new single-family homes totaled 80,000 units in March 2014, a decrease of 16.7 percent from February. Sales of existing single-family homes decreased by 4.3 percent to 900,000 units (at seasonally adjusted annual rates) from February to March 2014.

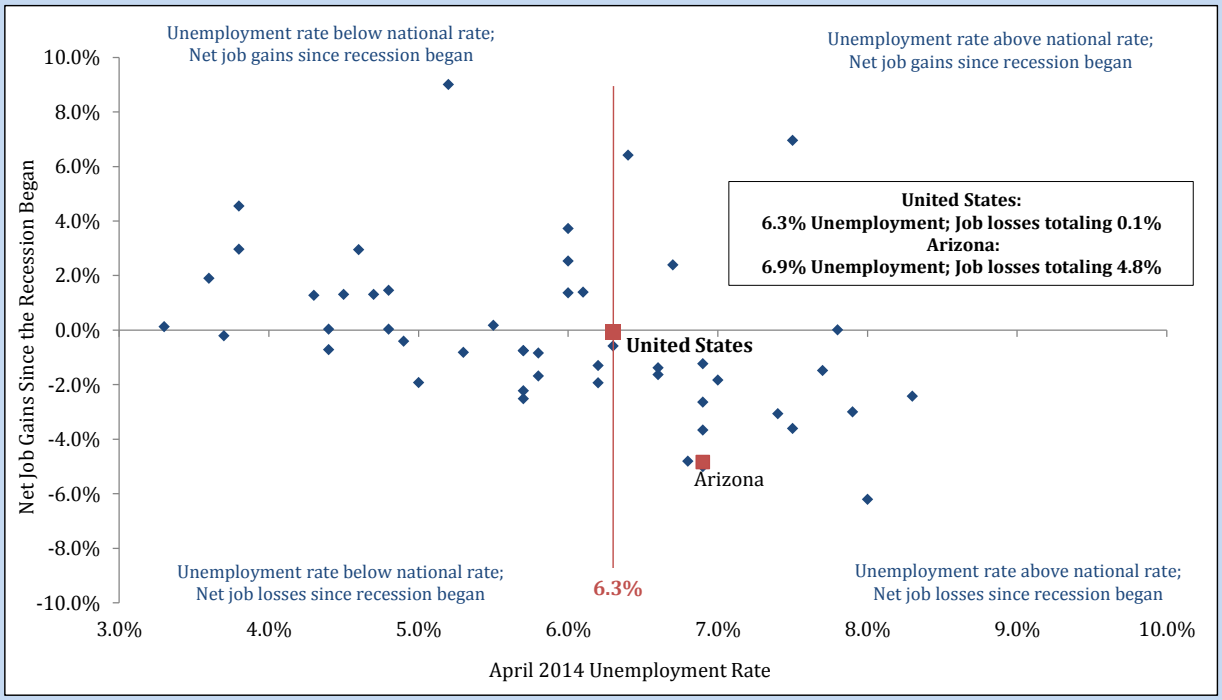
How Does Arizona Compare to Other States?

Workers across the country were hit hard during the recent recession. Since then, employment in some states has returned to pre-recession levels, while employment in other states remains below pre-recession levels. The chart below allows for a comparison of Arizona to other states using two metrics.

The unemployment rate (measured along the horizontal axis) serves as a gauge of current labor-market conditions in Arizona, while net job gains since the recession began (current nonfarm jobs as a share of jobs prior to the recession) measures progress toward labor-market recovery (vertical axis).

States falling in the upper left quadrant have net job gains since the start of the recession and unemployment rates lower than the national unemployment rate. States falling in the lower right quadrant have higher unemployment rates than the United States overall and are still experiencing net job losses relative to pre-recession levels.



Note: The figure above excludes North Dakota, which has a current unemployment rate of 2.6% and net job gains totaling 27.3% since the start of the recession.
